During Fire Prevention Week (October 4 through 10) JUNIOR FIRE MARSHALS in our town will be checking for fire hazards.

As local sponsors of The Hartford Insurance Group's JUNIOR FIRE MARSHAL program, we're proud to lend support to this year-round plan for fire safety education in home and school. As parents, we know you'll want to do everything you can to help it, too.

If your youngster is a JUNIOR FIRE MARSHAL, you'll be asked during the week to help make an inspection of your home -- and sign a Hartford Home Inspection report. We know you'll join your youngster in making sure your home gets "A" for fire safety.

CONGRESSMAN KEITH ANNOUNCES FINAL ACADEMY EXAMINATIONS

Congressman Hastings Keith (R-Mass) today announced that the final Civil Service examinations for all service academy candidates will be held on Saturday, October 31, 1964.
Exams will be given in Boston, Brockton, Hyannis, Nantucket and New Bedford.

The tests are given as a guide in helping the Congressman select those most qualified for entrance into the military academies.

In 1965, Congressman Keith will have two principal appointments to the United States Military Academy, two principal appointments
to the United States Naval Academy, six nominations for one appointment to the U. S. Air Force Academy, and ten nominations to the U. S. Merchant Marine Academy. (The nominees for the Merchant Marine Academy will compete with other young men throughout Massachusetts for the State's quota of eight appointments.)

Congressman Keith requested that interested young men apply directly to him at Room 243, ation in the UN. On November 10, the 1964 session of the UN General Assembly will convene against the continuing, overriding question of financial support of the world organization. This question is basic in terms of the purpose and objectives of the organization. It must be solved if the UN is to continue in its principle role--keeping the peace. Fourteen nations, including one of the major powers--the Soviet Union, face loss of their vote if they do not pay their overdue assessments by the time the Assembly convenes.

The UN deficit, now over $122 million, has resulted primarily from failure of certain members to pay their assessed amounts for the special peacekeeping operations in the Middle East and the Congo. Article 19 of the UN Charter provides that any member owing more than 2 years assessments "shall have no vote in the General Assembly." The World Court advisory opinion, requested by the General Assembly and accepted as binding by that body, upheld the obligation of members to pay their peacekeeping, as well as regular, UN budget assessments. The Soviet bloc and most Arab countries have refused to contribute toward the Gaza Strip operation; the bloc countries, France Portugal, South Africa and Belgium have paid nothing toward the Congo oper-assistance, manpower training, and the UN Children's Fund. They are financed by voluntary contributions, not through regular budget assessments. The United States has been paying about 40% of their cost, except for Palestine refugee relief for which we pay almost 70%. We are continuing to press the other developed countries to contribute more to these programs. They should be a truly international effort, free from political ties to either major power bloc. Even though we may succeed in reducing the US percentage, we must recognize that the need for such efforts will increase as more nations become independent.

It is evident that the Soviets also basically support this UN role. However, their failure, and that of other dissenting nations, to support the organization must be resolved. It will not be in our best interest, or in the long run, that of most of the other member nations, for the US to continue to foot the major part of the bill, either assessed or voluntary. In the Congo we paid over $170 million of the $408 million cost; in the Middle East we have supplied $73.7 million of the cost to date of $169.2 million -- about 42% of the total of these major peacekeeping operations. The Soviets owe $52.6 million on these operations, and France and Belgium owe a total of $20.4 million for the Congo.

Congress provided that the U. S. percentage of special assessments could not exceed our assessed percentage of the regular UN budget. However, in recent years, in addition to paying our assessed share for peacekeeping operations, plus voluntary contributions, the U. S. has paid part of the special assessments of certain smaller nations whose share was reduced in view of their inability to pay. Also, to date we have purchased $76.25 million, or half of the $152.5 million purchased by all nations, of the UN bonds required to finance the Congo operation for its last year.

The UN has provided a unique forum for all nations to exchange ideas, information, and in many instances to resolve differences before they exploded into armed conflict. This value should not be underestimated. For example, I have urged that the U. S. raise the problem of expropriation without compensation of American property in Cuba.

The key question for the United Nations, and for the United States, is what solution can be reached to provide support by all member nations for future U.N. peacekeeping operations. To my way of thinking the question must be answered, and NOW. Leverett Saltonstall.
